Lumiere

COMPANY PROFILE
Lumiere was founded in 2016 by Patrice Poujol, who completed a PhD on blockchain and film finance at the City University of Hong Kong and wrote a book on the use of the blockchain technology and smart contracts in film production.

Lumiere was coined by film industry experts ‘The Moody’s for Movies!’ It is an ERP platform to help finance and manage production and capital flows in film projects and during the reporting phase. Its software, Elemis, offers a set of tools focused on fast production payments, increased transparency for investors, cast and crews and a reputation risk management module.

Lumiere is currently deploying its first Elemis prototype in Cannes - Elemis aims to put film investors in control of their capital throughout the entire film production process. This system makes any attempt of corruption particularly difficult.

Another area of focus for Lumiere is to help independent producers close their finance gap - the company is currently working on the development of five Asian and European independent film projects and is looking to source more projects. It also aims to make film investments more liquid by securitising film participation into tradable movie shares.

LOOKING FOR
Looking for projects in development with a strong international or Asian market exposure, looking to close 5-20% finance gap over the next 12 months. Looking for interested investing partners to share the opportunities that we are developing. In any case, we are happy to meet both investors and producers to show them a demo of our products and services.

Ghosts City - France
www.ghosts.city

COMPANY PROFILE
Created at Christmas 2016 by former Film France COO Franck Priot and Ye Shu, Ghosts City is based in Paris and Beijing. As executive producers or co-producers, we help Chinese companies to shoot in France or navigate the international scene, and find partners out of their countries: co-producers, clients, allies, investors, etc.

In 2017, we helped France’s biggest independent animation studio TeamTO to successfully open its branch in China. Last year, we line-produced in France 20 episodes of Chinese TV series CROCODILE AND TOOTHPICK BIRD, with Chen Bolin and Zhang Tianai, for producers Land Entertainment and Teng Huatao.

We also develop our own movies, such as MISSION MANDALA, an English-speaking action thriller in the vein of TAKEN, for which we are looking for partners. And BLINK, an original comedy by Chinese-Malaysian director Yeo Joon-han, whose first film SELL-OUT won a prize in Venice. We are also co-producing Indian black comedy HOLY COW, by Kabir Sai, currently in post-production.

Holland Harbour - The Netherlands
www.hollandharbour.nl

COMPANY PROFILE
Holland Harbour has been developing and producing films and series for 18 years. Six years ago we decided to exclusively focus on mainstream family projects targeted at international audiences. Our first project emerging from that new strategy, a family feature called THE LEGEND OF LONGWOOD, was sold to over 65 countries. Since 2015 we have been developing an animated feature film called OLIVER’S TRAVELS, that again will be targeting global family audiences. The original story was developed and written by Nadadja Kemper, who also wrote THE LEGEND OF LONGWOOD; concept art and character designs were developed in our animation studio (Zoho Studio) by a team of international top-class artists that regularly work for the major US studios. The main characters are Oliver, a young polar bear, a hilarious seagull and his best friend, Tony, Izzy, a mermaid-like agent from a faraway star world and Luna, a panda bear and Oliver’s long lost girlfriend.

PROJECTS IN DEVELOPMENT WITH CHINA RELEVANCE
We are currently funding an animated family feature film called OLIVER’S TRAVELS that already received very positive feedback during the early development stage from various Chinese distributors. The general response was that this could be a very suitable film and brand for Chinese audiences.

LOOKING FOR

Bridging the Dragon is a producers' association connecting European and Chinese film professionals. It was founded in 2014 by a group of experienced producers and since then it has become the point of reference for whoever is interested in working between the two film markets. It has offices in Berlin and Beijing.

Bridging the Dragon organizes events at major international film festivals, provides networking opportunities and offers consultancy on producing films between Europe and China to its members. The association’s yearly Sino-European Project Lab helps develop projects suitable for collaboration between the two markets.

Bridging the Dragon is the official partner of the Marché du Film of the Festival de Cannes and of the European Film Market of the Berlinale for their China events and has collaborated with festivals such as Locarno, Venice, Rome, Shanghai, Xi'an Silk Road and Xining FIRST. It is supported by various European film funds and by private sponsors from China and Europe.

The mission of Bridging the Dragon is to increase the knowledge of Chinese film market among European professionals and that of Europe among Chinese ones; to establish connections among producers that could lead to long-term co-operation; to support the development of better content and the creation of new business opportunities. Through its network, Bridging the Dragon is creating a network of personal relationships, which is the key element for collaboration.
